SUPPLEMENT TO

25X1X REPORT NO.

1946 to 1948

- 1. There was a military radio station about three miles from MYTISHCHI(37°45'E/55°55'N) near BELLANINO (Note: presumably, BELYANINOVO). The entire area and all its installations were heavily guarded. The radio installation proper, an area about 3,500 feet square, was off limits. The fence around the site, which had been built by PWs, was 5.6 miles long. The radio installation was well camouflaged and skillfully built into the woods.
- 2. The following installations were available:
 - a. Radio station
 - b. Liesel power station
 - c. Weathern station
 - d. Transformer station and fire station.
- The Diesel power station was not yet in operation late in 1947. Siemens-Schuckert cable reels were lying about. The power plant was housed in a three-story brick building, 100 feet square, with a 60-foot tower. The construction of mysterious buildings whose surpose could not be determined was started in early 1948. The PWs of Camp No. 6356 were then replaced by Soviet soldiers.

1947 to April 1948

4. The PWs of Camp No. 6356 were employed for construction work at a large air force radio station in BELININI (Note: Presumably BELYANINOVO (37058'E/55057'N)). The four existing radio towers were augmented by four more. The receiving and transmitting installations were also considerably expanded. An instruction workshop was attached to the radio station. The machinery and optical instruments had come from Germany. The measuring instruments were Zeiss products. The instruction workshop was not in operation in the fall of 1947.

Comment: Since this is the first report on a radio station near MYTISHCHI, it requires confirmation.
